

Run Hackney half marathon took place on Sunday, 10 May, with over 13,000 runners covering the 13.1 mile route which took in the borough's landmarks

RUNNERS' WORLD

THE sun shone brightly and the crowds turned out in force to support the second annual Vitality Run Hackney half marathon.

Over 13,000 runners of all ages and abilities took part in the 13.1 mile race on 10 May, which took in some of Hackney's best-loved landmarks, including Hackney Empire, Broadway Market and Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

Residents and business people, friends and family, all lined the route, waving banners, handing out water, cheering on the exhausted, and applauding participants – many of whom were raising money for charity.

Elite competitor Matthew Kimutai crossed the finishing line first in an astonishing time of 1:03:21; closely followed by Run Fast team mate Sammy Nakoye in 1:03:26; and Anuradha Cooray, from Vale of Aylesbury Athletics Club, in 1:04:45.

Katy Webster won the women's race in a time of 1:17:38; with Philippa Taylor of Nene Valley Harriers coming second in 1:21:08; and Rebekah Gardiner, from Shaftesbury Barnes Athletics Club third in 1:22:25. The wheelchair race was won by Doug Stone in a time of 1:54:46.

The event certainly showcased the borough's unique community spirit, with the encouragement of spectators making all the difference for tired runners on their way round the course.

Bernard Lendor said: "I'm supporting three of my family members – they're running for charity. I brought my bike so that I could follow along the way.

This event is a real mood lifter.

"It's very exciting to see this kind of enthusiasm, especially because Hackney is a place which can be perceived negatively at times. It's nice to see people coming out with such a positive, euphoric feeling – and I'm all for it."

Miranda Schnitger, 34, added: "My boyfriend and his son are running today. He is a running fanatic, but he also runs to raise money for epilepsy in memory of a friend who died of the condition."

Labour's Meg Hillier and Diane Abbott retained their Hackney seats as Members of Parliament in the general election on 7 May

The results are in

THE nation went to the polls on 7 May in the UK General Election with the Conservative party securing a surprise majority government.

Like large swathes of London, however, Hackney bucked the national trend with both the borough's incumbent Labour Members of Parliament (MPs) being re-elected with an increased majority.

There was a high turnout – in what was predicted to be one of the closest election results in living memory – with 97,467 residents casting their votes across the borough's two constituencies.

Meg Hillier retained Hackney South and Shoreditch with 30,663 votes (64.4 per cent). While Diane Abbott secured Hackney North and Stoke Newington with 31,357 votes (62.9 per cent).

The borough's two

Labour MPs increased their overall majorities since the last election in 2010, when they received 55 and 55.7 per cent of votes in their wards respectively.

Diane Abbott wrote on her Twitter account: "[I am] humbled to have been re-elected with a majority of 24,000 and 63 per cent of the vote. Big thanks to all Hackney Labour activists who worked so hard."

In Hackney South and Shoreditch, the Conservatives came second with 6,420 votes (13.5 per cent). The Green party was third with 5,519 (11.6 per cent) and the Liberal Democrats fourth with 2,136 (4.5 per cent).

In Hackney North and Stoke Newington, the Conservatives came second with 7,349 votes (14.7 per cent). The Green party was third with 7,281 (14.6 per cent), and the Liberal Democrats fourth with 2,492 (five per cent).

A statement to voters by the Acting Returning Officer

A NUMBER of Hackney voters experienced problems in casting their vote in the General Election on 7 May.

Tim Shields, Acting Returning Officer and Chief Executive of Hackney Council, said: "While the vast majority of residents were able to cast their vote without any problem, I'd like to apologise to those who were affected by issues relating to the new national online voter registration system, which meant that some people were left off the printed register.

"This affected voters across the country, but we were able to resolve issues for eligible voters by liaising with poll station staff when residents attended to vote.

"We will be investigating and working with the Cabinet Office to understand exactly what happened and to ensure that this does not happen again."

Dancing in the streets

BANGING beats, colourful costumes and dancing are set to take over the borough's streets as Hackney One Carnival returns on 13 September.

The Council-run event brings together hundreds of performers from carnival and community groups in celebration of the different cultures and creativity that thrive in the borough.

Last year, over 7,000 residents came out to watch the carnival procession and live stage showcases.

Performer Jacqueline Green, who danced in the parade, said: "I love to see everyone enjoying themselves while I dance and entertain the crowd. It is nice to see that something is given back to the community."

Highlights for this year's event are set to include performances by Hackney's best young musicians, an all-day children's play area in Gillett Square and, after the procession, a carnival finale in Ridley Road – with reggae and dub music, plus food, arts and crafts from around the world.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care, and Culture, said: "Hackney One Carnival is a great way for residents to celebrate the diversity and creativity that thrives in our borough. Get the date in your diary, line the streets and join the celebrations."

Volunteers are wanted to help steward the procession and assist with registration and general administration. There are also opportunities to get involved with carnival groups and help with tasks such as making costumes.

Hackney One Carnival is due to start at 2pm and end at 8pm.

News in brief

Hackney begins its borough-wide 20 mile per hour roll-out

A BOROUGH-wide introduction of a 20 mile per hour speed limit has begun on Hackney Road and Pritchard's Road.

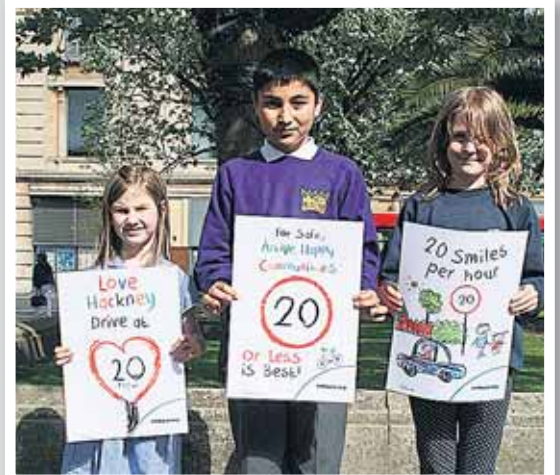

It is the first phase in a Council move which will see the new lower, safer limit being introduced to all of the borough's main road network by October.

Schools have backed the campaign with hundreds of primary pupils designing posters to promote the scheme. Designs inspired by drawings and words by Flora Grime, nine, and Sima Torabi, five – both from Millfields Community School – and Faisal Muhibzada, 10, from Kingsmead Primary School, have been chosen to go up on banners across Hackney to remind drivers of the new limit.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "I want to congratulate all the pupils who designed posters for us, and especially our three winners. I think it is appropriate that youngsters are involved in this roll-out because the new limit is about the future of our streets: reducing the dominance of motor vehicles and putting people first."

The new limit is expected to reduce traffic collisions across the borough by 10 per cent overall.

Signs and road markings will be used to alert motorists of the new limit.

Vote for Hackney's newest theatre to win £50k to transform warehouse

HACKNEY'S newest theatre has been shortlisted for a prestigious award, and residents are being asked to cast their vote to help them win.

The Hackney Showroom, which opened just last month, has been selected from 2,000 entries nationwide to join a 62-strong shortlist for the Jewson Building Better Communities Prize. If the theatre wins, it could receive £50,000 to help complete the conversion of warehouse space into an inclusive community theatre set in the 4,000 sq ft former print works in Hackney Downs Studio.

The money would enable the theatre to install professional lighting and sound equipment, fit out changing rooms, carry out ventilation and flooring work and install large front doors to make the place more visible to the community.

Founder Nina Lyndon said: "We are committed to smashing down the barriers that make some cultural activity off limits for many. This project offers bold, exciting theatre for ordinary people. Affordable, informal and with doors wide open."

Voting is open until the end of May, when the winner will be decided on numbers of votes and the views of a panel of experts.

The East Londoner said: "I love the enthusiasm and vibe here today and the weather also helped. It was a brilliant day, I'm buzzing."

The idea for Run Hackney – sponsored by Vitality – came from the Council's Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, Cllr Jonathan McShane, who ran in the race.

He said: "Congratulations to every runner and thanks to all our supporters for another huge success for Hackney. The borough gave runners a very warm welcome and the atmosphere was as much a carnival and celebration as it was a race.

"I'm delighted to see this year's event so well supported with a record turnout of runners and huge local support: it has been a fantastic day."

The large field of runners puts the race, organised by GO2, in the top 10 half marathons in the UK.

Jamie Warren, from Vitality Run Hackney, said: "After the success of the first ever

Hackney half marathon last year we wanted to set the bar high and create a bigger and better race day

Runner Steve Jolly, 61, agreed. He said: "I thoroughly enjoyed it – it was my second run. There was great support all the way around, Hackney's always done that though. Probably the best half marathon I've ever run. It was just top draw."

Michael Imonirhua, 41, added: "I'm running for a charity called Stroke. My dad died of a stroke so this is for him and other sufferers."

Over 1,000 local school children also participated by completing their own half marathon distance as part of the Vitality Run Hackney Schools' Challenge.

The youngsters ran a mile once or twice a week to complete 12 miles before race day and did the final mile on the finishing straight at Hackney Marshes to the cheers of thousands of spectators.

Liliana Mendes, 10, from Lauriston Primary School, said: "It really was amazing. My favourite bit was when everyone was cheering for us. It made me feel really good and that I had achieved something. I want to do it again next year."

Garden springs into summer

By Sheerie Barker

VOLUNTEERS got their hands dirty during a gardening session to help brighten up a new community space in Hackney Wick for the summer.

Hub 67, on Rothbury Road, opened last December. It is made from recycled cabins used during the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, and serves as a community hub.

Manager Sally Anthony said: "We're a new community space for people of all ages, we'd love to hear from anyone living in Hackney Wick who would like to get involved in running activities here or doing other types of volunteering.

"We've also been meeting with other charities to see if they can run some of their services from here."

One such project took place on 29 April, when residents were invited to plant herbs in the garden and find out more about activities at the hub.

Fresh mint tea and lemon balm made from herbs planted on the day were free to sample.

Environmental regeneration charity, Groundwork London, and Hackney Herbal – which encourages residents to harvest their own herbs to create a range of locally grown tea blends – supported the event by providing the materials and enthusiastic volunteers.

Hackney Herbal founder Nathalie Mady said: "We grow herbs in different places within Hackney to show people how to make teas and cosmetics from the them. Most of the plants here at Hub 67 will be used for this project."

Ruth Arnott, one of the volunteer gardeners with Groundwork London said: "Through our community project, 'Make, Grow, Do', we are supporting Hub 67 to improve their outdoor space and the network of community growers around Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park."

The hub was commissioned and designed by the London Legacy Development Corporation (LLDC) to promote environmental regeneration in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park and the surrounding areas.

School half term activities due to be held at the hub from 25 to 29 May include children's street dance classes and steel pan workshops for over 50s.

There are six Council-run or supported markets: Ridley Road, Broadway Market, Chatsworth Road, Hoxton Street, Kingsland Waste, and Well Street.

There are also a number of independent markets in Hackney, the most famous being Stoke Newington Farmers' Market, the first in the UK to only host organic producers.

Plus there are numerous pop-up markets that also attract visitors to the borough. These include Hackney Flea Market; Dusty Fingers vintage market; Hackney Homemade market, Dalston Food Market; The Wick market; and spaces like Netil Market and Hackney Downs Studios, both in E8, that host regular stalls and food festivals.

A trip to any of Hackney's diverse markets is a great way to see the borough and experience the sights, sounds and smells of the East End. As well as picking up some bargains, visitors will be supporting local businesses.

To celebrate Love Your Local Market fortnight the Council has launched a 'picture hunt' competition. To win a hamper of goods from local traders just capture images from at least three of the Council supported markets.

The competition closes at 5pm on 27 May and winners will be announced in the next edition of Hackney Today.

'Even when we don't understand each other, we can respect one another'

Eusoof Amerat is a respected Muslim leader in Hackney who devotes much of his time to working on community cohesion between the many faiths in the borough

By Hattie Worsley

I WAS born in Rangoon, Burma, but grew up in Mandalay. I arrived in the UK in 1967 as a 21-year-old man with my parents, two siblings, and $3 to my name," explains Eusoof Amerat.

"We went straight to Bolton because we knew some people there. But it was October and we were met with cobbled streets and constant rain – it was completely alien to us. After a few days, my younger brother and I set about looking for work.

"We wandered round the town in the drizzle and finally saw a sign that read: Salvation Army. 'That's it!' we thought, 'we'll join the army'. We had to mime the act of shooting each other with guns before they said, 'Oh, no! You've come to the wrong place.'"

Eusoof is now a respected Muslim community leader in Hackney, working on community cohesion between the faiths in the borough. The story of how he got here, however, is a fascinating one.

With banks, businesses, and schools nationalised in Burma, and currencies cancelled since the military took over power in 1962, Eusoof's father decided to leave the country he called home.

"People said America was wild, but Britain was stable, respectable and we could follow our faith, so we came here," Eusoof says.

Despite a distinction in physics, Eusoof found a job in a bobbins factory in Bolton. He recalls: "Soon after we started work it was the fasting month of Ramadan. The people in the factory couldn't understand why we were starving ourselves, but they respected our difference and so treated us with respect."

It was a formative experience for Eusoof who remembers it, 40 years later, as the moment he learnt how multi-ethnic communities can function positively. Eusoof says: "Even when we don't understand each other, we can respect one another."

A family friend soon lured them to London, where they were told about a small Burmese community in Hackney. Eusoof recalls: "We loved it, bought a house in 1969 through a Jewish estate agent, and have never left Hackney.

"Initially we were lost. There was nowhere to get halal meat here, we had to buy live chickens to slaughter ourselves. We need to pray five times a day and the only place we could do it as a congregation, back then, was once a week, on Fridays, in a very small basement in Church Street, under a friend's restaurant."

They had to ask for help and, once again, he encountered an example of kindness across the cultural divide that affected the course of his life.

Eusoof says: "Every working person among us gave £101 – a lot of money since our average wage was £8 a week. The Jewish community was already well established in the area and a local Indian-Jewish friend helped us find a house in Stamford Hill so we could provide services like prayers, marriage, funerals and religious education for children.

"When we outgrew that, they helped us find a former Jewish centre on Cazenove Road, and when our youths needed somewhere to socialise, St Thomas' church, E5, offered us the shared use of their crypt."

That Jewish centre became Hackney's first ever mosque. And the friendships he has built with local rabbis and vicars have led to wider collaborations between the communities.

Eusoof explains: "With our Jewish colleagues we work in areas such as local community issues, coroners, post-mortems, halal, kosher, circumcisions, security and shomrim at local, national and international levels.

"With our Christian colleagues, we work together at a grass-root level to support those who are in need." This includes raising funds for Age UK, Spitalfield's Crypt Trust, the Salvation Army, the Hackney Winter Night Shelter for the homeless, and Hackney Migrant Centre.

Eusoof explains: "I believe that there are two simple things you can do to create bonds between people. First: greet people, whether you know them or not, because smiling is charity. And second: give – regardless of race or ethnicity – because it helps in creating bonds between people."

Work begins on wetlands

Silt from the reservoir has now been dredged to create 13,000 square metres of new reed bed

WORK has begun to create Hackney's first wetland nature reserve in Stoke Newington.

London Wildlife Trust, which manages the site around East Reservoir, secured £1.5million last year to open up Woodberry Wetlands to visiting school and community groups.

The site, owned by Thames Water, has been closed to the public since 1833. The wetlands is already an important habitat for grey heron, kingfishers, dragonflies and bats.

“These works will give a boost to the valuable wetland habitats it provides”

David Mooney, the Trust's East London Development Manager, said: “These works will give a boost to the valuable wetland habitats it provides, helping to make it increasingly important for both wildlife and people seeking nature and tranquillity in the midst of a hectic city.”

Silt from the reservoir has been dredged, by specialist company Salix, to create 13,000 square metres of new reed bed, more than doubling the habitat for wildlife.

The excavated silt is being placed behind specially constructed fences to create a series of new islands and ponds, connected by channels.

Over the summer, local volunteers will help to plant new reed shoots on the islands and wildflower meadows around the edges of the reservoir.

A new visitor centre and walkways will also open in the summer, allowing free public access to large parts of the site for the first time since the 19th century.

The lake de-silting and reed bed construction work is being carried out thanks to £39,500 from Veolia Environment Trust, awarded through the Landfill Communities Fund.

News in brief

New app allows residents to report environmental issues

A NEW app launched by the Council allows people to report environmental issues like graffiti and dog fouling from their mobile phone, tablet or computer.

The app, called ‘Love Clean Hackney’, has four settings: category, location, description and photo.

For example, if a resident wanted to report an incident of dog fouling they would need to choose a location on the map, take a photo of it, add a quick description and select a category. The categories available are: abandoned vehicles, dog fouling, fly posting, fly tipping, graffiti, littering and road not swept.

The Council would then deal with it and keep the person who reported it updated on progress. There is also a live map on the website which shows all the reports which are underway or completed.

‘Love Clean Hackney’ is currently only for reporting problems on public streets in Hackney – not parks or private roads. For issues on housing estates, residents should contact Hackney Homes or the relevant housing association/landlord.

The app is available for iPhone/iPad, Android and Windows Phone. To download ‘Love Clean Hackney’, visit: lovecleanhackney.hackney.gov.uk

Shares available to buy in community-owned solar project at Banister House

RESIDENTS are now able to buy shares in London's biggest community-owned solar project.

The public offer is expected to raise the £142,000 needed to pay for solar panel installation at 14 buildings on Banister House Estate, E8, and follows start-up funding for the project from the Council.

The panels will allow residents on the Homerton estate to own and manage their energy supply, control energy generation and use, and tackle fuel poverty.

Investors are predicted to see a four per cent return on their outlay each year, with Banister House residents able to buy shares for a minimum of £50, and everyone else for £250.

A projected income of £28,000 is also expected to be raised over the project's lifetime which will be used to help alleviate fuel poverty locally.

The scheme will generate income through the Government's Feed-in Tariff, which pays renewable energy creators for electricity generated; the Council buying a proportion of the energy and the rest being exported to the national grid and sold at market value.

The initiative, led by not-for-profit group Repowering London, has also created employment opportunities and training for local people.

A free launch party will take place at Dalston Eastern Curve Garden from 7-9pm on 12 May. For more info, visit: www.hackneyenergy.org.uk/banister-house

The Wick festival

3 May to 25 October, from 12noon to 11pm, at the Old Baths, E9 5JH

WITH over 15 markets in Hackney, it can be hard to distinguish yourself from the hordes. But the latest addition to the borough, The Wick, promises to be less market, more 'mini festival'.

Returning to the former public baths on Eastway every Sunday over the summer, this event combines a farmers' market, art sales, vintage fashion and new designers with DJs, gigs, a 'beach' and – for the more adventurous shopper – hot-tubs.

► For more info, visit: www.facebook.com/thewickfest

The food court will have offerings from Yum Jungle, Mission Mariscos, Pulp'd fresh pressed juices, the Black Cab Coffee Company, Oh My Dog gourmet hot dogs and stone baked Italian pizzas.

A sneak peak of the events programme reveals a Holistic Day with Indian head massages, tarot and crystals; a Kids' Days with arts, crafts and music activities; and a Bank Holiday beach party. Just don't forget to pack your bikini in your shopping trolley.

Win tickets to Field Day

THE Field Day Festival is something of a misnomer – since you don't, actually, have to trek to a muddy field to catch the next big thing in music. It happens right in our borough's backyard, Victoria Park, and Hackney Today has a pair of tickets to give away.

Founded in 2007, the festival has sold out every year, and this year's line-up looks likely to pull in the biggest crowds yet. Over the weekend of 6 to 7 June, you can catch punk legend Patti Smith, festival regulars Caribou and British rock band Ride amongst many others. Refreshment will be covered by local favourites including Beavertown Brewery, The Five Points Brewing Company and Hackney Brewery. A line-up of international street food vendors – like Churros Bros, serving up sweet Spanish snacks and Moen & Sons handing out herby hog roast – are on board too.

Oh and you can even enter an egg and spoon race while listening to a traditional brass band. All the fun of the fair, minus the mud. Tickets are now on sale, from £38.50 at: www.fielddayfestivals.com

To be in with a chance of winning a pair of tickets to the full weekend festival, send a postcard to Field Day competition, Hackney Today, Maurice Bishop House, 17 Reading Lane, E8 1HH; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 12pm on 20 May. ### Spitalfields Music Summer Festival 2-16 June, various East London locations

HARPSICORDS and heartache, poetry readings and premiers, secret events and string quartets – it can only be the Spitalfields Music Summer Festival. The summer offering from Spitalfields Music returns for its 39th year from 2 to 16 June. Artists Emily Hall, La Nuova Musica and Shabaka Hutchings have curated a typically diverse line up, across a roster of unconventional locations. St Leonard's Shoreditch Church is hosting 'Women Sing East' on 8 June, a medley of jazz classics and pop arrangement. A 'Night At The Museum' takes place at the Geffrye Museum on 9 June, with music inspired by the museum. Events at Rich Mix, meanwhile, will be curated by composer Emily Hall, who introduces performances and installations provoked by her new opera 'Folie A Deux', and a 'musical rumpus' for under threes. At Village Underground things get a little moodier, with a programme of experimental jazz, live electronic music and a concert that concertinas Beethoven with work by living British composer Anthony Payne. A semi-staged performance of Purcell's 'Dido & Aeneas' is also taking place on 9 June. To date Spitalfields Music has produced 52 festivals for a live audience of over one million, broadcast to audiences of over 10 million, commissioned 54 new works and engaged over 150,000 people in a learning & participation programme. For a full line-up of events, visit: www.spitalfieldsmusic.org.uk/

The art of the matter

Millfields Community Primary School pupils won the runner-up prize in the Saatchi Deutsche Bank Art in Schools competition

WHAT do Tracey Emin, Damian Hirst and pupils from Millfields Community School have in common? They have all had their work displayed at the Saatchi Gallery.

Nursery and reception pupils of the Clapton nursery and primary school were named runners-up in a global competition and had their work exhibited alongside Britain's most famous artists.

Some 20,000 entries from 33 countries took part in the Saatchi Deutsche Art in Schools competition. Pupils, aged three to five, contributed to the Millfields submission.

“One of the prizes goes to one of the youngest collectives in the world – a very young classroom”

The large installation, called 'Sky Wall', was created over the course of a week under the guidance of parent and artist Laura Quick.

Alistair Hicks, senior art curator for Deutsche Bank's art collection, said of Millfields' entry: "One of the prizes goes to one of the youngest collectives in the world – a very young classroom."

The final artwork comprises a combination of sticky dots and paint on a panel of individual Foamex boards. Each board is stuck to the wall using Velcro, allowing children to rearrange the artwork themselves.

Nursery pupil Sander said: "I made Dad using paint." Classmate Shan'tay added: "I was going to make a rocket but I made some spotty things."

The artwork went on display at St James Church, Clapton, before being entered in the competition. This year's judging panel included Lauren Child MBE, creator of the children's books 'Charlie and Lola'; as well as Catherine Goodman, Artistic Director of The Royal Drawing Schools; and Nigel Hurst, CEO of the Saatchi Gallery.

The runner-up prize means that Millfields will be awarded £6,000 towards further developing art at the school, as well as the honour of their work being displayed at the Saatchi Gallery, on King's Road, Chelsea, until 8 May.

News in brief

St Dominic's School re-opens

A PRIMARY school building that was badly damaged by flash floods has been reopened.

On 19 September last year, a flood contaminated the entire infant school at St Dominic's Roman Catholic primary in Homerton. When water levels reached knee-height, the London Fire Brigade was forced to carry children across the playground to safety.

With the main office, two classrooms, kitchen and halls ruined, many classes were forced to deal with major disruption, operating from cabins in the playground. But after six months of work, the school reopened on 22 April in a new building.

Headteacher Deirdre Finan said: "We look forward to educating a new generation of pupils in our new building." More good news followed for the school when it was announced that it is to receive a grant to support its breakfast club. The funds, made available by housing association L&Q and the Greggs Foundation, will mean that 50 children a day will continue to benefit from a free breakfast every morning.

Jubilee's museum of artefacts

A COLLABORATION between school children and two local artists has created a 'museum of artefacts.' Hackney-based artists Claire Ward-Thornton and Ines Szamrey – known as Art Hoppers – develop art education projects for early years and primary aged children.

At Jubilee Primary School, N16, pupils created a history timeline exhibiting artefacts – artworks made by the youngsters – using a diverse range of materials and art techniques. The timeline represented each historic period studied throughout the school and stretched from the Stone Age right up to the Victorian era. The artefacts are now on display in the school's reception area.

Pupils made their own versions of historical artefacts

Students from Skinners' Academy win national business competition

PUPILS from Skinners' Academy triumphed over 100 schools to a win a national 'Dragon's Den' -style competition.

This year, The Mosaic Enterprise Challenge saw 4,000 students, aged 11 to 16, develop their business skills and ideas over four months, while being mentored by volunteers from major global companies. Five teams were then shortlisted to compete in finals and pitched their ideas on 23 April at law firm Hogan Lovells LLP in front of a judging panel including Claude Littner, an interviewer on hit BBC TV show 'The Apprentice'.

The Hackney team impressed the judging panel with their business concept – 'iRoundUp' – a system which allows students to donate change to charities via their school identity cards.

Jonathan Freeman, Director for Mosaic, said: "The winning team from Skinners' Academy were outstanding all the way throughout the challenge.

We can't wait to see what they do with their start up."

The win has meant a £2,500 cash prize for the school and a £500 seed fund to set up the business.

Skinners' Academy team captain, Daisie Spiteri, said: "We're so pleased to have participated in Mosaic's challenge. As we've seen today, the sky is the limit!"

Young people are being encouraged to help protect the borough's bees, butterflies and flowers at Dalston Eastern Curve Garden

Bee-utiful nature

YOUNGSTERS are being encouraged to become 'citizen scientists' and help protect the borough's bees, butterflies and blooms.

They can attend a free festival at Dalston Eastern Curve Garden to plant pollinator-friendly flowers, help make a giant bee hotel, study flowers under a microscope, and create a butterfly installation.

The event on 16 and 17 May is a joint project with Urban Bees, a social enterprise which encourages communities and businesses to plant and create habitats for bees in towns and cities.

Marie Murray, from

Dalston Eastern Curve Garden, said: "We are really excited to be working with Urban Bees and Hackney artist Emily Tracy this summer to help spread the word about the importance of pollinating insects."

"We're hoping our young people will become 'citizen scientists', identifying and counting bees, butterflies and other insects."

Alison Benjamin, co-founder of Urban Bees, added: "Bees are vital pollinators, helping to turn our grey cities into green places where nature and humans can thrive together."

"But wild bees need more food and habitat to flourish. Our work with Dalston Eastern Curve will create a beautiful bee-friendly oasis in the middle of Dalston and show others how easy it is to do the same where they live."

The event, called 'Bees, Butterflies and Blooms', marks the start of three weeks of activities at the garden for this year's Chelsea Fringe, a London-wide festival of plants and gardening. Other events at the garden include the launch of a pop-up 'herbal health bar' and a week of cooking and art activities for young people.

Website launched for young people's mental health needs

A NEW website has been launched to act as a one-stop-shop for Hackney parents and young people seeking information on psychological and mental health support. The CAMHS team works across the boroughs of Hackney, Newham and Tower Hamlets, assessing and treating under-18s and their families. The new microsite aims to bring all areas of their work together in a way that is easy to navigate for young people, parents and professionals alike. Information about services, the referral process and further guidance is all contained in one place.

Lights, camera, action: young people visit the Sky Academy Skills Studios

By Dila Tumer

YOUNG residents from Hackney became television presenters for a day during a visit to the Sky Academy Skills Studios.

The studios provide an interactive learning experience by taking young people behind the scenes so they can use state-of-the-art technology to create their own TV news reports.

The young people were given a tour of the studios, in West London, watched a live news broadcast and saw how the production team work together.

Kieran Hart, Morningside and Gascoyne Youth Club member, said: "It was great to see how all the people work as a team to put out live TV."

The trip on 16 April came about thanks to a partnership between Sanctuary Housing, Leyton Orient Trust and youth sports charity StreetGames.

Jane Ashworth OBE, Chef Executive of

StreetGames, said: "This was a fantastic opportunity for the young people to learn more about the broadcasting industry."

StreetGames runs regular sports sessions in Hackney on the Morningside and Kingsmead estates for 14 to 25-year-olds.

Mental health aware

Hackney is celebrating Mental Health Awareness Week with an array of events taking place throughout the borough

RESIDENTS are set to mark Mental Health Awareness Week in Hackney by trying stress busting techniques, taking part in a sporting event, or testing out new online resources.

The week, which runs from 11 to 17 May, kicks off locally with the launch of the 'Take A Pause' campaign on 13 May at Dalston Eastern Curve Garden. Run by charity City and Hackney Mind, it aims to promote a range of resources designed to help residents practise mindfulness – a type of meditation – including free group sessions and online resources.

This simple technique

“I hope the campaign sparks a mindful revolution across the borough”

has risen in popularity in recent years, with celebrity fans and global companies like Google championing its positive effects, while research has shown it can reduce stress, the nation's number one reason for sick leave from work.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “I hope the campaign sparks a mindful revolution across the borough and residents experience the life-changing benefits of mindfulness.”

Then on 15 May, the Wellbeing Games will take place at the Copper Box Arena in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park. People who use mental and community health services across Hackney, Tower Hamlets and Newham will get the chance to try out a range of sports and exercise classes, from badminton and zumba to yoga and football.

Meanwhile, a Hackney-based online resource designed to make mental healthcare more flexible and personalised has been endorsed by the NHS.

Big White Wall is one of just five mental health services to feature on the new NHS Choices Mental Health Apps Library for mobile phones and tablets, which allows people to explore the support options available if they suffer from stress or depression.

Those tired of solo jogs, or who want a change from the gym, can still book from a series of fun and invigorating group sessions – including boot camp and box fit – in one of 15 indoor or outdoor venues across the borough. But it's not all star jumps and squats, there is something for everyone, with dance fit, pilates, yoga and more, also on the agenda. Most of the activities are for over 16s, but there are also 'kids fit' sessions, targeting eight to 11-year-olds.

New timetable for New Age Games: free exercise classes for over-50s

TENNIS, swimming, cycling and Brazilian dance are just some of the exercise classes which Hackney's over-50s can join for free.

They are part of the Council's ongoing New Age Games programme and run Monday to Saturday in leisure centres, parks and other venues across the borough.

Elizabeth Adimado, 68, said: “I've been attending New Age Games since it started in September 2011. It keeps me out of the house, gets me chatting and meeting new friends, and has increased my activity levels.

“The programme has been good for me health-wise. My blood pressure and cholesterol are not as high as they once were.”

According to public health guidance, adults need to do two types of activity each week: aerobic and muscle-strengthening activity.

Adults, aged 19 to 64, should try to be active every day and do at least 150 minutes of moderate exercise and muscle-strengthening activities on two or more days a week.

The latest New Age

Games sessions run until 28 November and are delivered in partnership with Hackney City Tennis Club, Stoke Newington Cricket Club, the Leaside Trust, and GLL.

This is a typical studio portrait, taken in about 1890, although the woman's identity is unknown. It was quite common for a photographer to advertise themselves on the back of the image, and this one has a rather ornate advert for F A Bridge of Dalston Lane

A more recent studio photo from the late 1960s or early 1970s, by R A Gibson. Some of his images are on display at the Southbank Centre in the 'Adopting Britain: 70 Years of Migration' exhibition, which runs until 6 September

Once postcards became common, it was very usual, and cheap, for people to have their portraits printed on them. This 1915 postcard of an unknown lady is tiny – only about 5cm by 11cm – so the main point must have been to send her picture to family and friends rather than to write much on the back. The photographer, Williams' Pioneer Studios, had a number of branches in North London

Hackney Archives has a large number of images by Alfred Braddock. Unlike the majority of the other early photographers whose work is displayed here, he does not seem to have taken portraits. In the 1880s he ran a stationer's shop in Lower Clapton and had a side interest in photography, selling prints of local scenes which he had taken himself. He mounted some of them on card, as an early sort of postcard. This photograph, from the 1880s or 1890s, shows the corner of Stoke Newington Church Street and Park Street (now Yoakley Road)

Through a lens

By Sian Mogridge

LAST year, Hackney Today reported on how the Archives had been given the negative collection of R A Gibson, a local photographer who ran a studio on Lower Clapton Road from the 1950s to the 1980s.

Some of his photographs were displayed at Hackney Museum as part of its 'Strike A Pose' exhibition. However, Gibson was far from being the first professional portrait photographer in Hackney.

In the decade or so after the commercial introduction of photography in 1839, portraits were mostly the preserve of the well-to-do.

However, newer, cheaper technology changed this and, in the 1850s and 1860s, the number of photographic studios in London increased.

The earliest mention Archives staff have found of a professional photographer in the borough was in 1860, when there were at least two 'photographic artists'; William Backshell, on Dalston Lane, and George Richard Manwaring, on Stoke Newington Road.

Although the Archives holds many images taken by local photographers, little is known about most of these small businesses, and it is difficult to find out more information.

Sometimes, yearly Post Office Directories (like an early type of Yellow Pages) can be used to discover what years a business was based at a particular address. Often, the only evidence however is the photographs themselves.

This page features a selection from the work of some of Hackney's first professional photographers.

George James was an early photographer in this area, working between about 1867 and 1874. Hackney Archives has over 100 of his photos in its collection. As well as studio portraits, he also took views of Hackney. This one shows Homerton High Street in about 1870

The Gibson collection of negatives contains a lot of studio portraits, but also photos of events such as weddings, retirement presentations, bar mitzvahs and shows. His predecessors also helped celebrate special occasions. This photo, by F Poulter of 63 Well Street, shows the North London Philanthropic Society about to head out on a charabanc outing in 1930

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.

Kanelbullar (cinnamon buns) Makes 9-10

Preparation time
2 hours 30 mins

Cooking time
20 mins

Make 9 to 10 large kanelbullar, and bake for 20 minutes, or 24 smaller buns, and bake for 8 minutes. Preferably use a dough mixer or flat beater, but if you don't have one, you can make the buns by hand. You'll need a food thermometer to check the temperature of the mix.

Ingredients

- 200g butter, room temperature
- 500ml milk
- 35g dried yeast
- 750g self-raising flour
- 260g sugar
- ½ tsp salt
- 2-3 tbsp cinnamon powder
- 1 egg
- pearl sugar for decoration (use caster sugar if you can't find pearl).

Method

- Melt 150g of the butter and add the milk: the mix needs to reach 37°C. Put it in a bowl with the yeast
- Add the flour, 160g of the sugar and salt. Mix well until the dough is even and smooth. Sprinkle a little flour on top and cover with a tea towel

- Stand the bowl somewhere warm and let the dough prove and double in size; this takes around one hour
- Work the dough for 5 minutes in the bowl, then place it onto a floured work bench and knead for another 5 minutes. It will become less sticky, but you'll need to keep re-flouring the work surface
- Roll out the dough on the floured surface with a rolling pin and make a square (40 x 40cm). Spread the remaining 50g of soft butter over the top and sprinkle with cinnamon and 100g of sugar
- Roll the square up into a long sausage shape and then cut the roll into 5cm sections. Lay the sections, upended, onto a couple of baking trays and cover them with tea towels. Stand for 30-60 minutes. Preheat the oven to 200°C
- Brush the buns with lightly beaten egg and sprinkle pearl sugar on top. Bake for 15-20 minutes in the middle of the oven.

Cooper & Wolf, E5, is located in a former glaziers shop, refurbished by husband and wife team Alex and Sara, who named the cafe after their cats. The cafe is part of the family-friendly regeneration of Chatsworth Road and the surrounding streets, and aims to 'bring cinnamon-infused Swedish soul to Hackney'.

Feedback on how to improve Hackney's town centres

MORE than 330 residents responded to a survey on how to improve Hackney's town centres.

Between October and December last year, the Council asked members of the Hackney Matters online panel to give their views on the borough's markets and shops.

This feedback will help the Council to understand what residents would like to be able to buy on their local high street in the future.

Some of the feedback received from residents highlighted the fact that Mare Street and Dalston/Kingsland are the most popular areas for shopping locally, with Stratford and the West End seen as most desirable for purchasing clothes outside of Hackney.

Both Ridley Road and Broadway Market have high visitor numbers and levels of awareness, particularly amongst women, but the panel felt more could be done to raise the profile of other markets in the borough.

The survey also found that residents want to support local businesses and are happy that more restaurants, cafes and markets are opening in Hackney. Most shoppers felt their needs were being met in general, although some said Hackney could have more niche shops, cafes and clothes shops in particular.

Residents who want to have their say about the borough can find out more about joining the Hackney Matters e-panel by visiting: hackneymatters.org

Ridley Road Market is popular with both residents and visitors

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY (ST LEONARD'S COURT) COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER 2014*The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 – Section 226(1) (a)*The Acquisition of Land Act 1981

- 1 Notice is hereby given that the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, in exercise of his powers under the above Acts, on 13 November 2014 confirmed the London Borough of Hackney (St Leonard's Court) Compulsory Purchase Order 2014 submitted by the London Borough of Hackney.
- 2 The Order as confirmed provides for the purchase for the purposes of facilitating the carrying out of development, redevelopment and improvement of the land for the provision of new residential dwellings, retail units, new road layout, new public realm, landscaping, associated infrastructure and other ancillary development which are likely to contribute to achieving the promotion or improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of the area of the land described in the Schedule hereto.
- 3 A copy of the Order as confirmed by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and of the map referred to therein have been deposited at the Council's offices London Borough of Hackney of Town Hall, Mare Street, London E8 1EA and may be seen at all reasonable hours.
- 4 The Order as confirmed becomes operative on the date on which this Notice is first published. A person aggrieved by the Order may, by application to the High Court within 6 weeks from that date, challenge its validity under Section 23 of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981. The grounds for challenge can be that the authorisation granted by the Order is not empowered to be granted or that there has been a failure to comply with any relevant statutory requirement relating to the Order.

SCHEDULE*LAND COMPRISED IN THE ORDER AS CONFIRMED*LAND TO BE ACQUIRED:

- 1 Land including residential buildings, flats and/or other dwellings known as St Leonard's Court Estate principally consisting of 64 residential units bounded by New North Road to the north east and Beviden Street to the south together with the areas of parking, undefined areas of landscaping with some play areas and undefined land and estate roads within the vicinity of those buildings, except those interests owned by the London Borough of Hackney.

Signed: Patricia Narebor, Head of Commercial, for and on behalf of the Corporate Director of Legal, HR and Regulatory Services, London Borough of Hackney.

Dated: 7 May, 2015

PRELIMINARY NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MAKE GENERAL VESTING DECLARATION*STATEMENT OF EFFECT OF PARTS II AND III OF THE COMPULSORY PURCHASE (VESTING DECLARATIONS) ACT 1981*THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY (ST LEONARD'S COURT) COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER 2014*Power to make general vesting declaration

- 1 The London Borough of Hackney (hereinafter called "the Council") may acquire any of the land described in the Schedule above by making a general vesting declaration under section 4 of the Compulsory Purchase (Vesting Declarations) Act 1981. This has the effect, subject to paragraph 4 below, of vesting the land in the Council at the end of the period mentioned in paragraph 2 below. A declaration may not be made before the end of a period of two months from the first publication of a notice which includes this statement except with the consent in writing of every occupier of the land affected.

Notices concerning general vesting declaration

- 2 As soon as may be after the Council make a general vesting declaration, they must serve notice of it on every occupier of any of the land specified in the declaration (except land where there is one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) and on every person who gives them information relating to the land in pursuance of the invitation contained in any notice. When the service of notices of the general vesting declaration is completed, a further period begins to run. This period, which must not be less than 28 days, will be specified in the declaration. On the first day after the end of this period ("the vesting date") the land described in the declaration will, subject to what is said in paragraph 4, vest in the Council together with the right to enter on the land and take possession of it. Every person on whom the Council could have served a notice to treat in respect of his interest in the land (other than a tenant under one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) will be entitled to claim compensation for the acquisition of his interest in the land, with interest on the compensation from the vesting date.

Modifications with respect to certain tenancies

- 3 In the case of certain tenancies, the position stated above is subject to modifications. The modifications apply where the tenancy is either a "minor tenancy" i.e. a tenancy for a year or a yearly tenancy or a lesser interest, or "a long tenancy which is about to expire". The latter expression means a tenancy granted for an interest greater than a minor tenancy but having on the vesting date a period still to run which is not more than the period specified in the declaration for this purpose (which must not be more than a year). In calculating how long a tenancy has still to run, where an option to renew or to terminate it is available to either party, it shall be assumed that the landlord will take every opportunity open to him to terminate the tenancy while the tenant will use every opportunity to retain or renew his interest.
- 4 The modifications are that the Council may not exercise the right of entry referred to in paragraph 2 in respect of land subject to a tenancy described in paragraph 3 unless they first serve a notice to treat in respect of the tenancy and then serve every occupier of the land with a notice of their intention to enter and take possession after the period (not less than 14 days from the service of the notice) specified in the notice. The right of entry will be exercisable at the end of that period. The vesting of the land will be subject to the tenancy until the end of that period or until the tenancy comes to an end, whichever happens first.

Signed: Patricia Narebor, Head of Commercial, for and on behalf of the Corporate Director of Legal, HR and Regulatory Services, London Borough of Hackney.

Dated: 7 May, 2015

Invitation to Give Information

Every person who, if a general vesting declaration were made in respect of all of the land comprised in the Order (other than land in respect of which notice to treat has been given), would be entitled to compensation in respect of any such land, is invited to give information to the Council by making the declaration in the prescribed form with respect to his name and address and the land in question.

The relevant prescribed form is set out below.
